HEALTH EQUITY REIMAGINED

EQUITABLE DIRECTION

The human and economic costs of health inequities have risen to alarming levels, and these costs are unsustainable. At the Duke University School of Nursing, we believe new thinking and action are needed to ensure everyone has an equal opportunity to achieve optimal health.

Nurses are vital to achieving health equity as the largest health care profession. Our researchers, clinicians, and educators drive systemic changes to our healthcare system by developing and testing nurse-led interventions that mitigate harmful social determinants of health and provide the scientific base empowering nurse leaders to shape health equity policies.

This work is grounded in our paradigm shift and focus toward health equity that we invite you to follow.

Join us, by visiting

Mission

We at the Duke University School of Nursing advance health equity and social justice by preparing nurse leaders and innovators committed to improving health outcomes through transformative excellence in education, clinical practice, and nursing science.

Tools

School of Nursing leaders are advancing our mission through the development of transformative solutions in nursing education, practice, and science. We invite you to visit our Health Equity Reimagined webpage to learn more.

Faculty

As we move forward in our mission to address health equity, we have embarked on a recruitment initiative to bring senior scientists with expertise in health equity and social determinants of health to join our nursing science team.

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to the 2024 Social Mission Alliance Conference! This three-day convening marks a pivotal moment for advancing health equity, building on the legacy of the Beyond Flexner Conference to expand our collective commitment to urgent change in health professions education.

The past two years have brought significant shifts in the landscape of health professions schools. Necessity is the parent of innovation, and a changing climate has required responsive action by health profession students, administrators, faculty, and community stakeholders alike. Many of the narratives and perspectives shared over the next few days reflect experiences of disruption, advancement, and transformation.

Here in Durham, our 7th national conference aims to reflect on and learn from these transformative practices, to discuss the regressive challenges of today's social justice climate, and to envision a path forward together. Our mission for this convening is to foster the exchange of ideas, develop actionable strategies, and build lasting connections – all dedicated to activating our broad community to build and protect the health professions schools and training programs of the future.

I extend great gratitude to our co-hosts – the Duke University School of Nursing – and the many individuals and organizations behind the scenes whose efforts have made this conference possible. Their dedication has been instrumental in creating a program that is certain to be impactful.

As we begin this journey together, we should commit to advancing our social mission. We should showcase our collective determination to enact meaningful change and the belief that together, we can create a fairer, more just world.

Thank you for bringing your energy and expertise to the Social Mission Alliance Conference. Together, we are actively building a better future.

Warmest regards,

Toyese Oyeyemi

Dear Friends:

As Governor of North Carolina, I am delighted to welcome all of you to Durham for the 2024 Social Mission Alliance Conference cohosted by The Duke University School of Nursing. I know this is an exciting and greatly anticipated event.

North Carolina, and especially the Triangle area, is known for its stellar hospital facilities, providing some of the best research and healthcare in the world. By bringing together outstanding leaders from across the healthcare arena, you are making it possible to highlight the need for healthcare equity across the board.

My best wishes for a very successful Conference, and I hope you will enjoy the many cultural and entertainment opportunities available in this area.

With warm personal regards, I am

Very truly yours,

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
CITY OF DURHAM

April 8, 2024

Dear Esteemed Attendees of the 2024 Social Mission Alliance Conference,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the vibrant City of Durham for the seventh annual Social Mission Alliance Conference. Under the theme “Equity Amplified: Uniting Towards Social Transformation,” this conference promises to be a pivotal moment in our collective pursuit of a more just and equitable healthcare system.

As Mayor of Durham, I am deeply committed to addressing the social determinants of health and advancing health equity within our community. Our city has a rich history of innovation and collaboration, and it is our honor to host this gathering of health professionals, educators, practitioners, and advocates.

Durham, with its vibrant culture, thriving arts scene, and commitment to social justice, serves as an ideal backdrop for your discussions and collaborations. As you explore our city, I encourage you to engage with our diverse community, learn from its resilience, and envision a future where health disparities are relics of the past.

Together, we amplify equity. Together, we transform.

In Service and Gratitude,

Leonardo Williams
Mayor, City of Durham, NC

Duke University School of Nursing

Dear Attendees,

On behalf of the Duke University School of Nursing (DUSON), it is our great pleasure to extend a warm welcome to each of you as we gather for the 2024 Social Mission Alliance (SMA) Conference. DUSON is proud to be the first-ever sole nursing school to co-host this conference. Our School's mission to "advance health equity and social justice by preparing nurse leaders and innovators with a commitment to improving health outcomes through transformative excellence in education, clinical practice, and nursing science" aligns with SMA's goals, and DUSON is honored to partner with them.

The theme of this year's conference, "Equity Amplified: Uniting Toward Social Mission Transformation," resonates deeply with our School's core values of excellence, integrity, collaboration, respect, innovation, and diversity and inclusion. Our community of students, faculty, staff, and alumni and friends consistently demonstrates our dedication to health equity, and we are eager to engage in the meaningful discussions and collaborative efforts we hope this event will inspire.

As healthcare professionals, educators, researchers, and advocates — each of us recognizes the vital role nurses and health professionals play in shaping healthcare policy, promoting the delivery of quality, equitable care, and fostering improved community engagement and health outcomes. Whether you are attending this conference as a healthcare leader, practitioner, policymaker, student, advocate, or all of the above, we encourage you to share your experience, passion, and dedication to help make the most of this unique gathering.

As we embark on this journey together, let us celebrate the power of collective action and the impact we can create. Let us inspire, learn, and collaborate as we shape a transformative future for nursing and healthcare.

KEYNOTE

Debra Farrington

NCDHHS Deputy Secretary/ Chief Health Equity Officer

Debra C. Farrington, NCDHHS Deputy Secretary/ Chief Health Equity Officer is a native North Carolinian reared and educated in rural Columbus County. Through her humble beginnings in Chadbourne, Debra learned the value of family, hard work and perseverance. From her mother, who raised five children after being widowed at the age 28, Debra learned to work diligently and never give up on your dreams. Debra's values of fairness, equity, and concern for others along with her deep faith were shaped by her grandparents and mother, a factory worker who didn't finish high school but earned her GED at the age of 45. With their love, support and guidance, Debra received a BA in Psychology and Master of Social Work degree from UNC-Chapel Hill. She is a licensed clinical social worker with over 30 years of experience in community-based services for children and adults with behavioral health needs.

Debra joined NC Medicaid in October 2016 as a member of the transformation design team and was later appointed chief of staff, providing support on overall program vision, leadership, and strategic direction. Several of Debra's biggest priorities as chief of staff was to address equity in hiring, career advancement and health equity policies for individuals who had been historically marginalized.

As Deputy Secretary/Chief Health Equity Officer, Debra's focus is on addressing health disparities and the health needs of North Carolina's most vulnerable citizens. The Health Equity portfolio key objectives include building and maintaining trust with communities, engaging individuals and communities to receive feedback and input on health equity strategy and ensuring robust data is available and utilized to drive decision making, prioritization of strategies and resource allocation. The portfolio is made up of committed and insightful leaders and staff in the Offices of Rural Health, Health Equity, Olmstead and People, Culture and Belonging.

Avoiding another 50-year setback: Responding to the Supreme Court and State Anti-DEI Efforts

Room: Ambassador Duke

Edward Salsberg, MPA - Fitzhugh Mullan Institute for Health Workforce Equity/George Washington University, Toyese Oyeyemi, MPH, MBA - Social Mission Alliance, Maria L. Portela, MD, MPH - GW/SMA/Mullan Institute, Margaret Ziemann, MPH

The 2023 Supreme Court ban on affirmative action in college admissions along with state efforts to restrict diversity, equity, & inclusion (DEI) programs and policies have created new hurdles to educating a more diverse workforce. While evidence suggests that these recent court decisions and state policies will reduce student body diversity and impede equity efforts in health professions education, there are actions that states and schools can take to mitigate their impact. In fact, the constraints imposed by these policies provide an opportunity - and necessitate action - to reimagine and transform approaches to advancing equity in higher education and health professions training programs specifically. In this special "Listening and Visioning" session, participants will briefly hear from a panel of academic leaders, researchers, equity advocates and students to explore the impact of anti-DEI efforts in health professions education before turning to the second half of the session focused on listening to and learning from attendees. Attendee interaction is intended to spur discussion around 1) priority strategies and opportunities to protect DEI in health professions education, 2) the supports and resources that are needed to advance and leverage these strategies, and 3) the stakeholders who are positioned to provide them.

COMMUNITY PANEL I: THE ACADEMIC AND RURAL PUBLIC HEALTH DEPARTMENT COLLABORATION EFFECT

In this panel, we will discuss how rural public health departments and academic institutions partner to impact population health. Representatives from two rural North Carolina health departments, and the Duke University School of Nursing faculty who led the partnership development, will describe how their collaborations came together and the research, clinical practice, and educational activities created to improve health in rural communities.

OBJECTIVES

1. Describe ways public health and academia collaborate to conduct community engaged research.
2. Compare and contrast the ways public health and academic institutions partner to advance population health.
3. Describe ways that public health departments provide access to care and expanded opportunities in rural health.
4. Discuss the impact that the rural academic health department model has on population health.
5. Identify opportunities for students to build capacity in providing care in rural communities.

COMMUNITY PANEL II: ROOT CAUSES: HOW DUKE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE IS ADDRESSING SOCIAL DRIVERS OF HEALTH IN DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Root Causes is a student-led incubator that began at Duke University School of Medicine and has expanded across Duke University and Durham. At Root Causes, students explore innovative social drivers of health interventions through service, advocacy, education, and research. Root Causes organizes around clinic-community partnerships to reduce barriers impacting access to healthy food, housing, and safe environments, as well as providing support for voter registration and safe exercise participation.

WellNest Housing Support Program was established in 2020. WellNest supports community members transitioning from being unhoused to housing. In partnership with Durham Homeless Care Transitions, WellNest offers a team of students to provide furniture, hands-on moving support, and longitudinal tenancy support. Since 2020, WellNest has supported over 50 community members in their housing transition, sourced over 200 pieces of furniture to donate to new homes, and recruited over 100 student-volunteers from across Duke and Durham. WellNest has sourced nearly $16,000 through crowdfunding and student awards.

OBJECTIVES

1. To discuss social drivers of health in Durham.
2. To share how student-led groups are involved in learning about and addressing social drivers of health in service-learning work.
3. To highlight our goals and achievements this year.
4. To discuss our takeaways and recommendations for other student groups and service-learning initiatives generally.

THE M-PACT EXPERIENCE AND DUSON

DUSON/Mobile Unit

DUSON's M-PACT (Mobile Prevention and Care Team) Clinic is a nurse-led mobile health unit. Nursing students apply social determinants of health knowledge to provide quality care to rural and underserved urban populations. Partnering with Durham Technical Community College and their Community Health Lab, they provide health screenings and health education. Participants will get a glimpse of M-PACT in action in the community. Afterwards, participants will be guided through DUSON and tour the Center for Nursing Discovery, a nationally recognized and accredited simulation lab.

JOSIAH MACY JR. FOUNDATION AWARDS

The purpose of the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation Awards is to recognize outstanding leadership in promoting social mission in health professions education. Social mission is defined as activities or initiatives that teach, model, or improve community engagement, diversity, disparities reduction, value-based care, or engagement with the social determinants of health. Social mission enhancement means making programs not only better, but fairer.

This year's nomination process was highly competitive. The awards will be presented in five categories: individual excellence, institutional excellence, program excellence, lifetime achievement and the Fitzhugh Mullan Rising Star Award.

2024 AWARDEES

FITZHUGH MULLAN RISING STAR AWARD

ALEC J. CALAC (PAUMA BAND OF LUISEÑO INDIANS)

Alec J. Calac (Pauma Band of Luiseño Indians) is an MD-PhD Candidate at UC San Diego School of Medicine and Herbert Wertheim School of Public Health and Human Longevity Science. He has impressively risen to the level of being an internationally-recognized leader for championing policies and programs that promote Indigenous health equity and reform of the Indian Health Service. Calac is actively leading national health policy efforts linked to Native American priorities through his integral roles in several major national advocacy organizations. As a testament to the reach of his work, he was invited to participate in the White House Office of Public Engagement Leaders in Health Equity Roundtable Series. He currently serves as the Associate Director of the Clinical Problem Solvers Anti-Racism in Medicine Podcast and Co-Chair of the World Federation of Public Health Associations Indigenous Working Group Policy Committee.

INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE

LISA M. MEEKS, PHD, MA

Over the last decade, Lisa Meeks' work and advocacy have had profound impacts on recruiting, admitting, and retaining students with disabilities while simultaneously dismantling ableism in health professions education. She achieves this by engaging with HPE communities and associations to provide actionable education to dismantle barriers.

A standout achievement is her podcast, DocsWithDisabilities, reaching audiences in 100 countries and sharing stories of clinicians with disabilities. Meeks focuses on cultivating the next generation of disabled clinicians, researchers, and leaders. She champions an equitable and accessible research lab, guided by the principles of disability justice, emphasizing interdependence and leadership from those most impacted. Actively recruiting and mentoring disabled trainees, she ensures financial support and accommodations for their scholarly pursuits and conference attendance. Driven by her commitment, she tirelessly advocates for all, contributing to the vision of an equitable and inclusive future in health professions education.

PROGRAM EXCELLENCE ATLANTIC FELLOWS FOR HEALTH EQUITY

The Atlantic Fellows for Health Equity US + Global (AFHE) program develops early to mid-career leaders who understand the foundations of health inequity and have the knowledge, skills, and courage to build more equitable organizations and communities. The program does so by providing intensive learning and growth experiences and connecting fellows in a cohort network. The program includes US and international fellows from multiple health professions who are joined by others doing work in health such as artists, lawyers, and journalists to create an interdisciplinary network that sparks creative solutions to the most pressing health equity issues of our time. The program has a truly interdisciplinary and intercultural approach to learning, community building and striving to overcome global challenges.

INSTITUTIONAL EXCELLENCE THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO

The University of New Mexico (UNM) provides a learning environment that builds on the assets of its rural, majority-minority state. This is reflected in the diversity of the student body it recruits and the service-learning opportunities offered. It is also reflected in its strategic plan: "Transform health professions education across the Health Sciences Center to meet the needs of our diverse learners, our professions, and our state." Learners gain unique insights into their multi-ethnic communities through service-learning opportunities supported by a decentralized network of Health Extension Regional Officers (HEROs) and Community Health Workers (CHWs). Finally, UNM programs in education, service, and research are increasingly driven by community-identified health and social priorities with UNM health programs brought to the front door of communities via face-to-face or telehealth modes. One consequence is that UNM has one of the highest percentages of health science graduates remaining in the state and working in rural and underserved communities.

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

CASWELL A. EVANS, JR., D.D.S., M.P.H.

Caswell A. Evans, Jr., D.D.S., M.P.H., is an Emeritus Professor after fifteen years of serving as Associate Dean for Prevention and Public Health Sciences at the University of Illinois at Chicago, College of Dentistry, and faculty member at the UIC School of Public Health. He was a mayoral-appointed Chicago Board of Health member for thirteen years, and served two terms as a gubernatorial-appointed Illinois Board of Health member. Before joining the UIC faculty, he was the Executive Editor and Project Director for Oral Health in America: A Report of the U.S. Surgeon General, released by US Surgeon General David Satcher in 2000. He is an elected member of the National Academy of Medicine (NAM), served a three-year term as co-chair of the NAM's Global Forum on Innovation in Health Professions Education, a Past President of the American Public Health Association, the American Association of Public Health Dentistry, the American Board of Dental Public Health, and the Institute of Medicine of Chicago. Evans has focused on the issues of health inequities, access to care, and social justice throughout his career.

WHO WE ARE

Our vision is that every child has the right to be loved, nurtured, and safe.

For more than 25 years, the Center for Child & Family Health (CCFH) has been a national leader in treating children who have experienced trauma, preventing child maltreatment, and supporting families facing adversity.

WHAT WE DO

Did you know that 1 in 5 children will experience a potentially traumatizing event?

In response, CCFH strives to define, practice, and disseminate the highest standards of care in treating and preventing childhood trauma. With compassion and evidence-based practices, we work to heal the consequences of childhood trauma and ensure that children have safe, happy homes.

WHAT IS TRAUMA?

Trauma is any experience that threatens a child's physical or emotional safety and overwhelms a child's ability to cope.

Trauma includes abuse, neglect, or exposure to violence. It changes the way that children see and react to the world around them. Without treatment, these experiences can have consequences that last a life time.

WHAT IS EVIDENCE-BASED TREATMENT?

A treatment is evidence-based when it shows a proven effect in randomized, controlled trials. All programs and services at CCFH adhere to this standard of care.

CCFH was founded in 1996 in collaboration with Duke University, North Carolina Central University, and the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. Today, we continue to work at the intersection of academic research, evidence-based practice, and community impact.

HOW CCFH Transforms TRAUMA

TREATMENT

Strategy: Ensure that children in Durham and surrounding areas have access to the best mental healthcare for traumatic stress and related diagnoses.

Services:

- Trauma-Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy
- Parent-Child Interaction Therapy
- Child-Parent Psychotherapy
- Structured Psychotherapy for Adolescents Responding to Chronic Stress
- Attachment & Biobehavioral Catch-Up
- Problematic Sexual Behavior - Cognitive Behavioral Therapy
- Support for Adoptive Families

Impact:

CCFH diagnoses and cares for more than 350 children and their families each year.

Strategy: Address the root causes of trauma and child maltreatment by equipping parents to create safe, healthy homes.

Programs:

- Family Connects Durham
- Healthy Families Durham
- Durham Early Head Start Home-Based Program
- Responsive Early Access for Durham's Young Children (READY) Project

Impact:

Our home visitation and parent resource programs reach more than 1,800 households each year.

TRANSFORMATION

Strategy: Build trauma-informed systems of care by training individuals, agencies, and institutions throughout North Carolina and beyond in evidence-based practices.

Programs:

- Training Services
- NC Child Treatment Program
- Trauma-Informed Communities
- Trauma-Informed Leadership Training
- NC Trauma-Informed Child Welfare
- CCFH Internship Program

Impact:

CCFH trains more than 3,000 child-serving professionals throughout NC in trauma-informed, evidence-based practices each year.

FEATURED ARTIST SELECTION

"Strength in Solidarity" by Shannon Smith

ABOUT THE ARTIST:

I've been an artist almost as long as I can remember. I thought about pursuing commercial art at a young age, then Industrial Design in college because I love working with my hands. After designing a furniture piece for an art gallery, it unfortunately was closed down post 9/11. At that time I had to make the tough decision to walk away and chose to join the US Navy, which ended up taking my life in a very different direction. In spite of all the changes that have occurred since that time, I have never lost my love for artistic expression, and I don't limit that to canvas.

ABOUT THE ART:

I don't often name my creations because I don't want to skew a person's interpretation of my art toward a specific direction. It took some introspection before I chose the title "Strength in Solidarity," which is really what is most true about the art itself: a unified effort of people creating something greater than they could alone. For me, this piece is more about a feeling than a specific meaning. Ultimately, I wanted to portray people from different cultures coming together in unity and acting in support of each other, but I also wanted to expose the strength and beauty of their differences. If my art can get people just asking themselves a basic question of "I wonder what they all have in common," to me that is enough to light a spark for social change, which I long for. I find that I am always happiest when I'm with a diverse group of people and can learn about their different experiences. The world would be extremely boring if we were all the same.

Some facts: this piece was painted on a recycled cabinet door I primed the background with white spray paint, then used mostly acrylic paint for the rest, with a few other random mediums thrown in (oil pastel, metallic marker, colored pencil, probably something else...) and then a lot of clear coat.

ARTIST STATEMENT

Born and raised in Louisa, Virginia, Darius Quarles is a self taught artist who has been painting seriously since 2006. He describes his style as “unleashed!” He has no particular subject matter, although when it comes to pop culture he’s drawn to the controversial and intriguing. He produces over 200 original pieces per year, including public murals like the Liberty Warehouse Mural in Durham. His works are in numerous private collections throughout the US, and he has participated in hundreds of art shows and festivals. Darius lives and works in Durham, North Carolina with his wife and their four children.

ARTIST STATEMENT

"My name is Nobuyoshi Godwin. I have autism. Being autistic is ok. I can see trees in my mind and talk with them. It's blue and it's ok. When I paint I feel good because it's my job, and I am proud of it. I think people enjoy and think my painting is good. I like drawing animals. They are sweet. That is 4400 and purple. If I sell my paintings I can buy more paint colors. And that is purple and that is 4400." – King Nobuyoshi Godwin
